

QUALITY COMMITMENT

We want to help our end customers to succeed by improving the productivity and quality of the infrastructure construction.

We work closely with our partners globally to find the best solution for automation of mobile machines.

Novatron's management is committed to continuously improving its quality management system and operations.

In our daily operation, this means that:

- Everyone works with entrepreneurial spirit which includes comprehensive insight from a business and customer perspective
- We aim to provide cutting-edge technology and best know-how of automated mobile machinery and open digitalization of infrastructure construction
- We lead in target-orient manner through open dialog where different perspectives and opinions are taken into consideration
- We work as a team and develop processes and ways of working better together
- Everyone is responsible for the results and development of their own work
